NEWS BY TELEGRAPH

Each Day the Shadows Deepen at the National Capital.

A Dread Anxiety Has Taken Possession of the People.

The President's Utter Exhaustion Becomes More Apparent.

It Seems Almost Impossible for Him to Recover.

He Is in a Terribly Emaciated and Exhausted Condition.

From a Weight of 210 Pounds He Is Reduced to 125.

Yet the Sanguine Surgeons Claim There Is Hope for Him.

But the Members of the Cabinet Despair of His Recovery.

Matters Which Transpired in Transatlantic Lands.

Together with Other Readable Telegraphic Paragraphs.

From the Sick President.

Washington, Aug. 23, 9 a. m.—Yesterday's bulletin will be noticed in its comparisons with any previous condition. Such comparisons have been a marked peculiarity of official utterances and have been entirely misleading. The presence of the Cabinet officers show that the true condition of the patient is apparent. Slight variations of pulse and temperature have been unimportant factors in the President's case. He has been sinking slowly but surely, slipping away from the tender and skillful hands which have sought to hold him back. That those who see him every hour as weeks roll away should fail to note the signs of diminished hold on life, is but repeating the experience of tens of thousands of loving households bereaved in the midst of hope. For several weeks one member of the Cabinet has been under taboo at the White House for holding and expressing a belief that Guitau has succeeded in his wicked work; that his heart was full of pity for useless suffering. This taboo must now certainly have extended to all the Cabinet. Mr. Blaine's dispatch of last night disclosed to the world what has been known for several days. That the premier had abandoned hope when he returned here and saw the condition of affairs last week.

That fateful Saturday seven weeks ago he slept a feverish sleep, which is all he has had to rest him since Wednesday night. The great head moved slowly from side to side and the once eloquent lips uttered unintelligibly. Such a picture as this to the public, dazed with conflicting reports, an idea of how low lies the President.

BLISS INTERVIEWED.

Washington, 1:30 a. m.—In an interview with Dr. Bliss he made the following statement: The President is doing nicely to-day. He has swallowed 184 ounces of liquid nourishment since 1 o'clock last night, and has taken an emetia. His food has been stronger than yesterday. Much more beef juice and peptonized milk have been added. The stomach seemed to assimilate the food well and without discomfort. There is evidence of increased strength to-day as the result of more stimulating diet and less frequent and stronger pulse. Otherwise there is little change. The parotid gland is still hard to touch and not perceptibly changed in appearance. Suppuration if it begins at all, which is questionable, may not come for two or three days yet. Septic evidences in the blood are apparently passing off. On the whole, I think his condition a little better than yesterday. He seems to me to be mending.

Executive Mansion, 4:25 p. m.—Dr. Reyburn reported at 4:25 that the President has had a comfortable afternoon. No unfavorable symptoms have made their appearance, and he has swallowed, since one o'clock last night twenty-one and one half ounces of liquid nourishment, including a fair proportion of beef juice. At the present hour, although there has not been a decided change, the President is doing fairly well.

DESPONDENCY AND DESPAIR.

New York, Aug. 23.—A Post's Washington special says: There is a very despondent feeling here notwithstanding the official bulletins are somewhat better. Despondency is directly attributable to the midnight despatch of Blaine. The general feeling is that Blaine does not put his name to a despatch which has not been carefully considered and of course he had a better opportunity of obtaining information from the surgeons than had the newspapers. Blaine's despatch is a revelation to a large majority of persons in that it for the first time gives them an adequate conception of the extraordinary weakness, exhaustion and emaciation of the President. Those who have seen General Garfield in health can scarcely comprehend that he now weighs but one hundred and twenty-five pounds, yet Mr. Blaine's despatch, the accuracy of which without doubt is confirmed by the statements of those constantly about the sick room and of the attendants who have felt him. "I left him," he is nothing but skin and bones," said one of the attendants. Increasing anxiety at the White House is illustrated by the fact that Mrs. Garfield scarcely leaves his bedside for a moment and has discontinued her evening drives, but the President's physicians certainly have by no means given up hope.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

Executive Mansion, 6:30 p. m.—The President has continued to take liquid food by the mouth at regular intervals during the day and has had no recurrence of gastric disorder. The parotid swelling remains unchanged. In other respects his symptoms show some improvement over his condition of yesterday. Pulse 104, temperature 99.2, respiration 19.

Signed
D. W. BLISS,
J. K. BARNES,
J. J. WOODWARD,
ROBT. REYBURN.

New York, Aug. 23.—A Washington special says: As very considerable nourishment has been retained upon the stomach in the last forty-eight hours without the least gastric disturbance and without increasing the strength of the patient, points to the fact that he is showing unmistakable signs of growing exhaustion. Fear is expressed that there is a lack of ability to assimilate even such easily digested food as has been given. That the President is noticeably weaker than at any time during his illness is admitted, even when his condition is compared with that at the close of his sixty hours' starvation ending Friday last. When he awakens he lies still, scarcely turning to look toward his attendants, unless necessary to take something from them. Only to his wife does he attempt to offer greeting. To all others he is indifferent. There is evidently an effort to keep his consciousness.

An attendant describes him as lying this morning with his knees drawn up and right arm passed over his head, just as he laid on the stretcher when he was brought into the White House.

UNOFFICIAL BULLETIN.

Executive Mansion, Aug. 23, 9 a. m.—From the best information obtained at this hour, including two of the attending surgeons, it may be said that the condition of the President is not changed in any respect since yesterday afternoon. He is taking increased quantities of nourishment, and this circumstance of course affords rational grounds for the feelings of encouragement, but the same uncertainty which prevailed yesterday with regard to the future course of the glandular inflammation prevails to-day and whether the patient can take nourishment enough to sustain his strength through the present critical stage of his case. Indications are that he can, but until there is a more decided change than has yet occurred confidence in his recovery must be withheld. It can only be said that the patient certainly is no worse in any respect and that his ability to take nourishment is steadily increasing.

BLAINE'S DISPATCHES.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—An Inter Ocean's Washington special says: A 7 p. m. Secretary Blaine is sending several private dispatches in answer to the question as to his opinion. He replied, "I am simply saying that the symptoms are more favorable, that is all."

BULLETIN.

Executive Mansion, 10:30 p. m.—The President has had rather a better day than was generally anticipated. The somewhat discouraging tone of Secretary Blaine's telegram to Lowell last night seemed to prepare the public for the worst and although the official bulletin this morning was favorable the general feeling of anxiety and apprehension prevailed both at the Executive Mansion and throughout the city. It seemed to be almost generally conceded that the condition of the President was in the highest degree critical and alarming, and on the streets the persons asked what they thought of the President's chances would have replied that death was a question of a few days if not a few hours. For this excitement and alarm however the real facts of the case hardly furnish sufficient justice. The actual condition of the President was the subject of grave anxiety to the surgeons, attendants and Mrs. Garfield, but no more so yesterday and not as much as on Sunday. That afternoon was really greater reason for discouragement than at any time since then, because there seemed then to be only a very faint hope that the patient's demoralized stomach could be brought to resume its functions. As soon as the President began to swallow food again his condition to that extent became more hopeful. Without adequate nourishment death from exhaustion seemed certain while with proper nourishment he might live. In a qualified sense, therefore, he was better this morning than Sunday night, although his general condition had not materially changed. Before going to examination to-day he had swallowed six ounces of beef juice without nausea. His increased ability to take nourishment encouraged the surgeons' hope. The danger from exhaustion which they regard with the most apprehension might be evaded. The President passed a quiet morning taking nourishment frequently in the shape of beef juice, peptonized milk and milk porridge, with emetia every five or six hours. Up till noon he had swallowed six ounces of beef juice and liquid food but there had been no indication of increase in strength with the exception of stronger and slightly improved pulse. The glandular swelling remained hard and showed no change in size or appearance, and the amount of mucus secreted in the back part of the mouth was about the same as yesterday. Generally speaking, the patient was holding his own but made no perceptible progress. He slept about as much as usual during the afternoon, and continued to take nourishment until at four o'clock he had swallowed more than twenty ounces. At 4:20 this evening Dr. Reyburn reported that the general condition seemed slightly improved. This information was confirmed by the evening bulletin, which showed a lower pulse than the patient has had on any evening since the 13th.

"The First Man who Touches a Cucumber Dies."

Denver, Aug. 23.—Peter Spink, of the firm of Spink & Upton, vinegar makers at 21st and Newatta streets, this morning arrived in town and gave himself up to the authorities, stating that he had shot and killed John Burki. It seems that Spink and Burki were raising cucumbers on shares at a ranch seven miles from Denver on Bear Creek, Jefferson county. They had agreed to take turns in picking, one to pick one week and the other the next. It is stated that Burki had already been picking two weeks, when Spink Sunday went to the place and asked if he was to be allowed to pick this week. Burki replied he intended to put in the remainder himself. Upon returning to town Spink was advised by his lawyer to assert his rights and take possession. Accordingly this morning he armed himself with a revolver and two companions and went to the ranch. As the party alighted from the wagon Burki went to the place and entered with a shot gun, saying that the first man that picked a cucumber would die, and commenced pulling the hammer back and raised the gun as though to take aim. The gun was pointed toward Spink and he immediately fired two shots, one taking effect in the arm and the other in the breast, producing serious but not needlessly fatal wounds.

Captain Howgate's Criminalities.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The Evening Critic says: The instance of General Hazen a further charge was made against Captain Howgate for the additional embezzlement of $50,000. The evidence upon which this charge is made comes from New York detectives who found a voucher for the payment of supplies in large sums furnished by parties in New York. These parties positively disclaim all knowledge of the transactions, affirming that the supplies in question were never furnished by them and that no such moneys had been received from a disbursing officer of the signal service. In one instance forged vouchers for $10,000 were discovered, and specified in this further charge which covers what has been unearthed. It is charged that a double set of vouchers were obtained by Howgate on the plea that the funds of the various years must be kept separate.

Gen. Hatch's Report.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—The following dispatch from Col. Hatch, giving a report of a fight with the Indians, in which Lieut. Smith was killed, was received this morning: Aug. 20, '81.—Lieut. Smith, whom I had pushed out of Cummings to head off the hostiles, struck the band fifteen miles west. A severe fight followed, our loss being Lieut. Smith and four men killed and seven wounded. Gen. Daly and a party of citizens joined Smith when in pursuit of the Indians. Daly was killed. Lieut. Taylor, with 28 cavalrymen and scouts, came up after the Indians were driven off last night, and will take up the pursuit. The Indians were going towards Mimbres. I ordered troops yesterday from Bayard and Cummings to watch the country between Cummings and Bayard.

Cablegrams.

ARRESTS IN RUSSIA.

Berlin, Aug. 23.—News has been received from St. Petersburg of recent arrests, these including officers of the general staff who are accused of advising the revolutionists of the precautions which the government is taking. Although the prisons are filled with persons accused of political crimes, very few have been brought to trial.

GAMBETTA ELECTED.

Paris, Aug. 23.—The mayor of Belleville declared that Gambetta had been elected in both divisions but Letemps says: "We learn at the last moment that there is a question of some informality in regard to voting in the second district, which will be submitted to commissions and scrutineers."

LAYING THE CABLE.

Panama, Aug. 23.—The steamer Faraday spliced the end of the new cable off the land's end and proceeded laying the mid ocean section.

CARGO OF COTTON DESTROYED.

London, Aug. 23.—The forward hold of the anchor line steamer Furness is full of water and the cargo of cotton is entirely destroyed.

At election at Leeds to-day to fill the vacancy in the Commons caused by the appointment of Herbert Gladstone to be Junior Lord of the Treasury, Gladstone was returned without opposition.

FRANCO-TUNISIAN.

London, Aug. 23.—A despatch from Tunis says the Bey's troops, which left Goletha yesterday have gone to Kairwan in the hopes of inducing the tribes there to yield and thus avoid the necessity of entering the town. The French, however, are determined to occupy it as they desire. This will cause dissatisfaction in the adjacent provinces of Algeria for which purpose they must subjugate the southern portion of the regency. The French are entering upon the most difficult part of their enterprise, as their entrance into Kairwan will be seriously opposed. It is feared that in the event of a collision the Bey's troops will side with the rebellious tribes.

Kelly and Grace.

New York, Aug. 23.—The Mayor and John Kelly are said to have made a treaty of peace the first results of which will be the confirmation of the Mayor's nominees when the aldermen reassemble Tuesday. Mr. Grace and the ex-boss it is said were at Saratoga the other day and some mutual friends improved the opportunity to bring them together to talk the thing over. The experiment proved a signal success as both bosses were willing. The basis of the treaty is equitable stipulating a division of city patronage in other words and a recognition of Tammany at the public crib.

Big Grain Speculations.

New York, Aug. 23.—The Herald says: The extent of the recent grain speculation may be inferred from the fact that Rufus Hatch is known to have carried at one time 80,000 bushels of corn. A prominent down town merchant had three million bushels more than the entire supply in store at Chicago, and Keene had one million bushels purchased at 45 cents and sold at a profit of $200,000 according to rumor. The Armour of New York and Chicago, held even more and are credited with having made a handsome fortune. Among the shorts, who have lost large amounts of money, a prominent German banker is spoken of, who for himself and customers has dropped $700,000 within a week, mostly on foreign account. The loss among small operators who had sold in the market short, have been very large in the aggregate.

Irish Intentions on English Vessels.

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—The Ledger's New York special says: I hear from good authority that the British consulate cabled the home government the substance of an address of the so-called Irish revolutionary convention which has been held in secret sessions here during the past few days. That address without the slightest qualification proclaims their intentions to destroy the British vessels whenever they can be found and declares that it is just as well to begin a work which is more easy of accomplishment and by the time a few hundred English merchant vessels are destroyed the world may witness the beneficent sight of all the shipping merchants and insurance companies of England presenting petitions to Gladstone to reconsider the Irish question.

Cornell Crew's Crookedness.

Ithica, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The Daily Journal says that Shinkel of the Cornell crew, Michael Casey, a saloon keeper and Samuel W. Reed, a wholesale liquor dealer, made up the party that had agreed that Cornell should lose all the races abroad after the first, which it was expected the crew would win. The Journal says there is documentary evidence of the treachery and states that Shinkel wrote Casey from London before the Cornell crew had started for Vienna to bet that Cornell will lose the Vienna race.

New Stables.

At the directors' meeting of the street railway company, last night, it was determined to build new stables at once. L. P. Browne, A. Levy, F. A.
